

CHANGE LOCATION OF BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

Due to unforeseen circumstances it has been necessary to change the location of the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic to the new High School in Didsbury on Tuesday, July 3rd, from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The local Red Cross is deeply appreciative of the co-operation received from the Evangelical Church in the past years as in 15 years of operation of the clinic, every clinic except two have been held in that church. Undoubtedly at some future clinic this church will again be called upon to offer their services to this very important humanitarian work.

A side report reveals that Didsbury district is being asked to produce 140 bottles of blood at this clinic; the main reason for this urgent appeal is tied up with the fact that 2319 bottles of life-saving fluid were sent out last month from the Calgary depot. The bottles have to be replaced, you know the one that can make this possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morris will hold "open house" Sunday, July 1, from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. in celebration of their silver wedding anniversary. Yes, she's stayed with him for 25 years, we know she'll stay with him for many more.

Pipeline Moving Our Way . . .

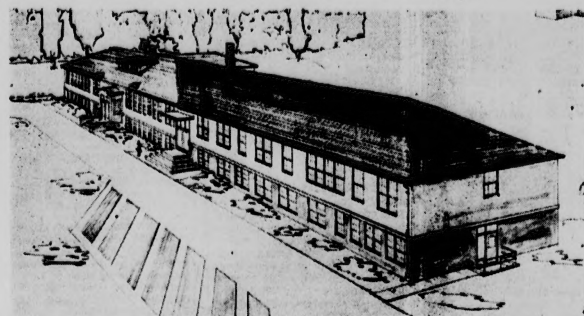

Crews of the Western Canadian Natural Gas Co. moved in from the east last week and started work on the pipeline that will bring natural gas to Didsbury late in the year. At last! They were digging and laying them down in the vicinity of the railroad tracks. Don't look out your window right now, they may be in your backyard.

That's the way it should be — we wanted action and that is what we're getting. Have you got your meter in yet?

A picture is worth a thousand words — the one shown above, if it were a true one — would be worth thousands of uncomfortable and dangerous hours to patients who are in need of accommodation in Didsbury hospital. It's not a true picture.

Just an architect's drawing of the present set-up and the twice-defeated proposed addition. Ratepayers will be asked to cast votes on Saturday, August 4 to sanction the borrowing of monies for the very necessary addition to the local health center.

Much more information regarding cost and the great need of this change will be pecking at you from these pages each week until you're ready to drop a ballot in the box. We hope you lean on that pencil the right way.

Golf Notes . . .

Twelve ladies turned out last Thursday to complete in the low score for even holes with the winner being Mrs. Helen McNeil. Low score on odd holes today and next Thursday, July 5 the draw committee has chosen the tombstone competition.

The two ball foursome played Sunday had a good turn out with 24 couples taking part. Mr. and Mrs. Alf Allen were the successful couple with a score of 45. Dr. and Mrs. C. McNeil came close with a score of 47. There were a few dark horses in the game on Sunday and some of the favorites came in last. (How did the boss and his wife get in that category?)

Cam Wordie, a local lad who knows his way around the links, is competing in the club championship tournament at the Riverside Golf Course in Edmonton. At last reports he was in the fourth in the elimination affair and still going strong.

PRIZES STILL NOT CLAIMED

Only one prize, a floor lamp, the third in a string offered by Didsbury merchants had been claimed up to Wednesday noon. Mrs. S. McLean held the winner.

The persons holding No. 43190 can still collect a set of silverware and No. 43190 is in the market for a mantel radio. Unless claimed by Saturday night alternate numbers, 27735 and 18602, will take over for two weeks.

W.I. Constituency Holds Annual Convention Here

With a registration of 80 the Women's Institutes of district 5 held their constituency conference in Didsbury United Church last week. Mrs. H. J. Richardson convened the day's program. Honored guests were Mrs. Roberts, director of district 5, and Mrs. Prendergast, provincial secretary. Mrs. Richardson reported she had visited nine institutes and two girls clubs this year, attended the conference in Calgary and entertained Mrs. Parker from Australia.

The W.I.'s have donated $115.00 to the Senior Citizens Home, held a shower for a member and her family who lost their house and possessions in a fire, and donated to numerous charities.

The 10 secretaries gave concise and interesting reports of their year's work. Some raised money by bake sales and teas, others put on dances, card parties, bingo and bazaar. Two W.I. are to put on picnic for their families and many have supper and social evenings for them.

Social service convener, Mrs. Tre-Monah, suggested we have collections of eggs, vegetables, fruits, etc.

SOMEBODY'S GONNA WIN SOME MONEY

Didsbury Lions holiday bingo is drawing close to the finish and the next couple of draws should produce an owner for the $250 cash prize.

Tickets are still available from Lions members and at business places in town and it could well be the lucky card has not yet been sold.

Net proceeds will go 50 per cent to the playground project and 50 per cent to the proposed rest room.

No Bells Ringing ???

What gives? Mom isn't shouting at me to get in the saddle?

Yes, we imagine that's what will run through the minds of the 485 pupils who attended the local centre of learning during the past term, when they open their eyes Friday morning. Thursday is the last time they will have to punch the clock until September, come then some will have moved on to higher education fields, the younger ones will be waiting to get back in the door. However right now they all deserve a rest — we mean the students, the staff and those lads who wheel the six school buses through any weather and act as family counselors more times than you know.

Have fun, all of you!

Quick Return To Hospital . . .

Sometimes you just can't win a round. Mrs. E. Kirk journeyed to Didsbury one day recently to return her daughter home after a stay in her local hospital. Luck just wasn't with them that day — they picked the same time to cross the tracks as did the Dayliner, the speedy passenger train that hits the rails between Edmonton and Calgary at a fair clip.

The result? Return to hospital for the occupants of the car, suffering from shock and lacerations. They are reported to be out of the serious stage.

It is hoped their next trip home won't carry as many bumps with it.

MT. VIEW W.I. HEAR TALK ON EDUCATION

Gebers for a donation from the W.I. of $25, a letter from Arlene Nelson that she will speak at the October meeting; a "thank you" from Mrs. C. Fry, from Ontario. A report was given on the dinner at Smith Red Poll field day.

Mrs. Redge Hamper's agricultural topic was on irrigation.

Mrs. C. Snyder spoke on health and education and she stressed the importance of methods for teaching reading. On health she chose a story, "I Married A Diabetic" which gave much information.

A contest by Mrs. E. J. Atkinson was won by Mrs. B. A. Atkinson. Tea money netted $1.10.

MONDAY, JULY 2nd NATIONAL HOLIDAY

Dominion Day, that one-day celebration that rolls around every year, falls on Sunday this time around and, as is the custom, will be celebrated on the following day, Monday, July 2.

Most places of business throughout the country will close their doors for the day and special events, picnics, etc. will take over.

The highways will be busy — move over you aren't among those who won't report for work on Tuesday — make safety and courtesy your code of the road.

Great joy, especially after a sudden change of circumstances, is apt to be silent and dwells rather in the heart than on the tongue.

A cow's

Any self-respecting cow likes to know that the precious food product she supplies is handled with greatest care so it will reach her customers fresh and pure.

From the dairy farm to your doorstep, aluminum is aiding the hygienic handling and processing of dairy products. Milk pails, cans and churns... tank trucks and dairy equipment... hoods for milk bottles and foil for butter and cheese... all are of aluminum. This modern metal's smooth surface prevents contamination; it is easily kept shiny-clean. And it does not "pick up" foreign flavors or odors. As one European authority has said, aluminum and milk are made for each other.

Canadians Peer Closely At Boom...

After years of booming expansion stemming from the demands of World War II, there now is a growing body of evidence that Canadian attitudes toward this spectacular economic growth are changing.

The expansion and growth continue. But most Canadians during the past decade have either optimistically seized such opportunities by the forelock as came their way, or merely participated passively in general prosperity, voices now are being raised more and more frequently to ask where the nation is going.

On the official level, this mood of reappraisal was signaled last year when the federal government appointed a three-man royal commission whose job was nothing less than to investigate the entire Canadian economy, and to draft a blueprint for development over the next 20 years. Hearings now are completed, and the commission has adjourned to write its report — obviously a labor of months.

Mood of Reappraisal
A second royal commission is looking into methods of financing Canada's publicly owned broadcasting system, which with the advent of television has grown into a body-spend money at the rate of about $30,000,000 a year. Again, the mood is one of reappraisal, of checking up on rapid recent expansion, and of attempting to chart a clearer future path.

Hosts of smaller surveys are going on — many of them routine government inquiries, but now somewhat colored by the new mood.

Outside government, there is further evidence of the change in the amount of attention that is being paid to routine statistics. Investment figures, long buried in the financial columns and seldom investigated by the average general reader, have come onto front pages of Canadian newspapers with publications of a report last April on foreign investment in Canada.

Principal source of worry arising out of these United States investments which have more than doubled since 1945. American firms now control more than half of Canadian manufacturing, 60 per cent of Canadian oil exploration, 70 per cent of the oil refining, and all of the nation's oil transportation.

Public Concerned
While it is obvious that large benefits accrue to Canadians from the $3,000,000 a day in new American investments that flow across the border, the new awareness of how much control is wholly vested in U.S. corporations, has disturbed many people. National magazines are giving prominence to the situation — and also to the decline of wheat, formerly the major prop of the Canadian economy.

There is, in fact, already a political issue in the matter of foreign control which is producing some curious anomalies. In Quebec, where the Liberal opposition is attempting to oust the conservative Union Nationale government of Premier Maurice Duplessis, it is the Liberals who are charging that the province's resources are being handed over to foreign control.

In Ottawa, the party line-up is reserved, with the Liberal government defending its record to an American group to build a trans-Canada pipeline: it is the Conservatives who raise the cry of selling out the nation's resources to United States control.

'Risk' Capital Needed
Generally this pattern is followed: government in office, faced with the problem of further expansion, tend to welcome new investment from whatever quarter. It is often pointed out that Canadian, on the whole, are loath to provide "risk" capital. Their preference is for bonds or, when they do buy common stocks, for established, secure enterprises.

PERMIT BOOKS IN THE MAIL

This week the Canadian Wheat Board mailed out grain delivery permit books and within the next few days, maybe now, they will be in the hands of elevator agents.

Put That Hammer Down

Surely readers of a Montreal newspaper must have rubbed their eyes when they came across an item which stated that a farmer's son had been fined for doing carpentry work without a license. In court the father said it was true that his son had no competency papers from the Provincial Joint Committee on the Building Trades. "They caught him on a school building with a hammer in his hands," he confessed.

Professionalism is being carried pretty far indeed when the law steps in and prevents anyone from working with common tools. There is more work waiting to be done in this country than there are people available to do it. We need all the help we can get and anyone with a hammer and a head on his shoulders, and a willingness to pitch in and help should be encouraged, not penalized. There are only a very few jobs where the state is justified in barring the eager amateur. The more competition the better for all of us.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE:

Psychiatrist to patient: "When did you first discover you enjoyed paying your income tax?"

Despite the mounting interest in so-called "growth" stocks, Canadian capital for new development is simply not available in big enough quantities to seize the many opportunities.

On the other hand, opposition parties, whatever their label, have been quick to sense public disquiet over the situation, and have what is for many people a valid basis of criticism in an era where genuine political issues have been few and hard to find.

Businessmen voice the feeling accurately — typically in addresses like a recent one by Max Mackenzie, former Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce, and now president of Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Company, Ltd.

"We are now at a critical point in our development," stated Mr. Mackenzie. "The question is: Where do we go from here?"

Alerted Program?
"Do we just continue our present policies and pattern with their great dependence on our exports of primary products and partially processed raw materials?"

Or do we alter our program somewhat — not by a sudden about-face but by a change in the balance of emphasis given to the development of secondary or advanced manufacturing as against the expansion of primary industry."

All these issues — plus some vaguer ones having to do with Canadian cultural and territorial sovereignty — are obviously due for a thorough airing during the next 12 months, with see four provincial elections and federal campaign.

One of the most striking effects of the situation is the obvious growth of interest in the complicated pattern of economic development by the average citizen. His obvious efforts to find out what is going on, and his concern over whether he really approves of it.

For a nation which has been marked for at least a decade by relative indifference to what governments do in detail, this is a major change.

INTRODUCING MR. JUDD: It is my pleasure to introduce to the ratepayers of Mountain View No. 49 a newcomer to our staff of weed inspectors. Mr. Harold B. Judd of Dogpound has been named to be my assistant.

Harold is a graduate of the Old School of Agriculture and is also presently farming on his own farm near Dogpound. He has had a great deal of experience at first hand in dealing with weed problems, both culturally and chemically. I recommend "Harold" to you as being a man of sound judgement, well equipped to give advice in the matter of farming generally, and weed control particularly.

Watch Those Insect Pests: Reports are starting to come in to me about insects of various kinds attacking shrubs, spruce trees, caragana hedges and gardens.

The spider mite and yellow headed spruce saw fly are beginning their activity on spruce and pine trees. The Red turn beetles have been active in a number of gardens already. These beetles attack radishes, turnips, cabbages, cauliflowers, mustard. These edible plants must be well with derra dust. In the case of the spider mite and saw fly worm, a new insecticide is available as a combination treatment. Malathion, very powerful insecticide which was used last year on the corn leaf aphid is recommended as being satisfactory to use in controlling both these insects on spruce and pine trees.

WEDDINGS

GLOVER - MORRIS

Baby Chrysanthemums and peonies formed an attractive setting in Knox United Church, Edmonton, for the marriage of Miss Patricia Mae Glover, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Glover of Edmonton, to Kenneth Wm. Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morris of Didsbury. Rev. A. G. S. Edworthy, assisted by Miss Ruth Simpson performed the double ring ceremony. Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of floor length bright satin with lily point sleeves. The skirt was complimented with charmingly lace, and a "sylvia" tulle and fell in a short train. Her fingertip veil of illusion, misted from a crown of seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of talisman roses and feathered yellow carnations. Her only jewelry was a single strand of cultured pearls, a gift of the groom.

Attending the bride was Mrs. Sidney Simmonds, as matron of honor; Miss Audrey Symes, bridesmaid and Daphne Glover, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid. They wore identical cocktail length gowns in pastel shades of mauve and sea foam and carried matching bouquets of yellow and white daisies.

Mr. Paul Maruyama and Carl Morris attended the groom. Ushers were Mr. Bert Foreman and Mr. Don Pettit. Mrs. Sims played the wedding music and Miss Margaret Latmann sang "A Wedding Prayer" and "On Perfect Love."

Following the ceremony, a reception for approximately 100 guests was held in the church hall. The brides table was centered with a four tiered wedding cake flanked by baby chrysanthemums and daisies. Mr. Edworthy proposed the toast to the bride. During the reception, the guests were entertained by Miss Diane Ross at the piano and a solo by Miss Ruth Simpson.

For a wedding trip to the mountains, the bride changed into a pale pink wool knit suit. Her ensemble was accented with navy accessories and a corsage of pink baby glads.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris will make their home in Edmonton. Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rupp, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Gillrie, Mr. and Mrs. J. Deadrick, Mr. and Mrs. B. Parker, Miss Seville Rupp, Mrs. Pearl Benne, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Morris, Ron and Carl and Mrs. W. J. Wordie all of Didsbury; Miss Merle Silbert, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hanson, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Deuch of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. N. Pickler, St. Francis, Alberta; Mr. Arthur Rupp, and Miss Iva Rupp all of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Morris, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. J. Glover, Red Deer; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Glover, Devonshire, England; Dr. and Mrs. A. Harder, Barhead.

CANCER CURE? NOT YET!!!

Cancer cure isn't to be expected overnight from research now going on with special cancer "serum," reports The Financial Post. Medical researchers say results are still very inconclusive with no evidence so far that the serum can cure; they are doubtful about the extent to which the serum arrests the disease. It will be one or two years at least before more definite findings are available.

Ramblin'

Roamin'

We've been figurin' again . . . That the young lad lost in the east end of town one evening last week caused more sprained muscles and tortured nerves than Liberace did when he made his first appearance on TV. For our money we'd sooner spend our spare time doing something constructive — when we watch Liberace all we want to do is destruct and the screen is the closest target. It's still in one piece but please don't tell me when his program comes on. It's like a young lass told us he can play the piano but I wish he wouldn't open his mouth.

We've been figurin' again . . . And think that this part of the country must be a good place to live in. Because why? We have received a report that ten pair of Blue Heron are nesting in an area not too far removed from where this was written. We won't tell you the spot because the eggs resting in their cubicles don't care for any visitors at this time. We'll keep a check on the large size egg fruit and let you know what happens later.

We've been figurin' again . . . That our first approach as to whether or not we would be using natural gas here in 1956 was all wrong. We took pictures the other day of the pipeline crews at work. Look for that blue flame under your cooker this year.

We've been figurin' again . . . That the government grant to our two major cities is a little off-base when compared to grants received by the smaller municipalities (we speak of the anniversary splurge, which left the little guy out). A rough estimate shows that Calgary received $20 a head — in Didsbury we received 25 cents a head — we think our heads are worth more than that. We don't want a memorial centre right now, all we want is the hard surface approach from the main stem into Didsbury. It is now 1 year plus 37 days since the assurance was given that the road would be taken care of.

We've been figurin' again . . . It was a smart man who made the observation that woman's intuition is that little something that assures her she's right, even when she's wrong.

"THINGS WORTH COUNTING"

"How many senses are there?" asked the teacher. "Six" came the answer. "How is that?" questioned the teacher. "I only have five."

"I know," replied the boy. "The sixth is common sense and that is worth counting." In the old rhyme, "sing a song of sixpence," one line reads, "The King was in the counting house." Only kings needed counting houses in times past. Things are quite different today. Many people nowadays are spending their lives in counting houses, counting money. While many more are spending their entire working time counting the stocks, bonds, and securities of others, and other material assets.

Our time has also witnessed the invention of a large number of machines, to facilitate this tremendous task of modern counting.

One piece of mechanism will do under a competent operator, what it would require many to do with our.

With the use of the slide-rule one can get accurate results quickly which would otherwise take many people long hours to attain.

The last two centuries have made counting a profession in a general way. Today one almost needs to be a professional counter to understand what it is all about. There are many counting systems and many computing machines; so many, that it requires both time and study to understand their place and worth in our modern society. There are machines with which we count it, in 1/100th of an inch, and others with which we compute the distance between the earth and the stars that are considered to be one million light years away from us.

Adding is an advance in the science of counting. So the counting of values "unseen and eternal" is an advance toward the highest ends to be gained from true countings. Our Master said "seek" meaning, search out from among life's many values and interests, those which enable you to realize God's righteous will, and

A very particular housekeeper was having her bedroom painted. Wishing to learn the progress the painter was making, she crept to the bottom of the stairs and listened. Not a sound reached her ears.

She: "Painter, are you working?" Painter: "Yes, Ma'am."

She: "I can't hear you making a sound." Painter: "Perhaps not ma'am. I ain't putting the paint on with a hammer."

purpose in life. When this is done all values will be increased. They will be added too. They will be more in number, and they will make a larger contribution to human well-being. This man's well-being become much larger in scope and worth than the momentary elation, or empty laughter of wasted days.

The Psalmist prayed, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

Every piece of a car; or of any other modern machine, large or small, has a number. What fun your scribe man would have, if every time you took your car in for a new part, he would have to sort over hundreds, yes in some cases, thousands of parts, to see which one related itself correctly with the adjoining parts. The number on the part tells the informed parts man, what car, also what model, and where the part belongs on the car it was made to repair. Thus the Psalmist's request is, that we may be instructed, to so understand ourselves, that we can fit in harmoniously with life's greatest purposes and achievements. Life's misfits, like misplaced parts of machinery are always causing trouble.

G. K. Chesterton said "Show me the stubs of a man's check-book and I will tell you what he believes is most worth counting." Have we ever taken time to actually and honestly consider what we believe to be worth counting? How much are we counting for Him, from whom all things come? He did some counting for man. He is also counting on man. Are we counting for Him?

"The great world's heart is aching. Fiery aching in the night, And God alone can heal it, And God alone give light; And the men to hear the message, And to speak the living word, Are you and I my brothers, And the millions that have heard."

New Bank
Policy Hits
The Headlines

The present policy of credit restraint applied by the chartered banks as a result of the monetary actions and suggestions of the Bank of Canada, was designed "to sustain and prolong prosperity by not allowing an inflationary spree to take over," it was stated here today by F. W. Nicks, president of The Canadian Bankers' Association.

Speaking at the Association's annual meeting, Mr. Nicks said the pressure for additional credit during the past 12 months had been unusually strong — so much so there had been increasing restraint applied by the Bank of Canada.

"This means," said Mr. Nicks, "loans have become less easy to obtain, increases have become difficult to arrange and, for some purposes, quite out of the question."

"It may seem strange to talk of credit restrictions while there is abundant evidence of continuing prosperity for the country at large," he said. "But we are living in an age of national economic management, not only in Canada but in all leading nations, and one of the prime objectives of such management is to see that booms do not get out of hand and lay the groundwork for depressions."

Bank of Canada Role
Mr. Nicks said the Bank of Canada, in regulating credit and currency, generally used recognized monetary powers to increase or diminish the chartered banks' aggregate capacity to supply credit in the form of loans or investments. In addition, sometimes the central bank sought informal arrangements with the chartered banks to deal with special situations. During the past year, there has been extensive use of both methods.

"If," he added, "the special arrangements which have been made in the past year have helped, along with more orthodox measures, to moderate a too rapid expansion of credit, this is of course all to the good. Experience is showing that a good deal of determination and rather strong medicine to bring a surging business expansion under reasonably effective control. The credit restrictions no doubt are a burden on many businesses and individuals which would like to have greater access to lending facilities. It is unpleasant to be told by one's banker that there is simply not enough money to go round. The banker, too, finds it unpleasant and difficult to have to apply restraining measures against his customers."

The Alternatives
"When we come to think about it, however," Mr. Nicks continued, "it is pretty clear that it is better to put up with a certain amount of restraint now, and to work out our financial problems in a spirit of co-operation and concern for the general interest, than to accept the alternatives. For the alternatives might be either another bout of inflation, with attendant danger of a serious subsequent shakeout, or else a return to the apparatus of direct control over business and individual activities which most of us are happy to have put behind us."

Mr. Nicks traced the rising demand for bank credit in 1955 and observed that it has remained unusually strong so far this year. The increase in total Canadian loans from March, 1955 to May, 1956 was around $1.2 billion or roughly 30 per cent. This sharp rapid recovery from the business recession of 1954. There were few businessmen, bankers or government experts, Mr. Nicks observed, who foresaw the rapidity of this recovery, and it was therefore not surprising that restraining measures lagged somewhat behind the realities until late in the past year.

Tighter Monetary Policy
The tightening of the monetary situation became noticeable in the autumn, when the Bank of Canada acted to keep down the banks' cash reserves and signalled the tighter position by several increases in the bank rate. The banks, to provide for loan commitments, had to sell securities. As these sales depressed, prices declined and interest rates moved upward. This pressure spilled over into other interest rates as well, and "more recently," in the light of the pronounced increases elsewhere, the various banks made upward adjustments in lending charges."

Mr. Nicks said one of the special requests made of the chartered banks by the Bank of Canada concerned "term loans" to corporations and direct purchases of corporate securities by the banks. The whole field of capital investment had been one of extraordinary high activity and "the highly competitive atmosphere of Canadian banking, with each bank striving to meet the legitimate requirements of its customers bore and new, helped to bring about a substantial growth in these 'term loans' and holding of corporate securities." When the Bank of Canada asked the chartered banks to refrain from making new commitments for term loans, Mr. Nicks said, the chartered banks readily agreed.

"In addition to this specific request," he continued, "the Bank of Canada asked the banks to examine very carefully applications for new credits and for renewals of existing Human Eye Camera !!!

What Next ...

There is now a movie camera that automatically adjusts itself to lighting conditions. Lens operates on the same general principle as the human eye and the iris automatically opens or closes to adjust to varying indoor light intensities. Enables determining the proper exposure even by a novice and permits the following of a subject from bright light to deep shade without having to stop and adjust the exposure. In addition, the camera signals the photographer when the light becomes insufficient for good movies.

credits with a view to maintaining control over future growth. As a result of this discussion, reinforced and emphasized by the general pressure on the banks' cash position and by the penalty involved in selling securities at lower prices, the banks have instituted restraining policies.

Policies Have Taken Hold
"Though such policies have not prevented a further significant increase in bank loans," Mr. Nicks said, "there is no doubt that they have held the supply of credit below what it would otherwise have been. Because of the continued strength of the business upsurge, and also because of commitments undertaken when credit was more generally available, the momentum of the expansion in loans has been very great and has carried right through the winter and spring. Nevertheless, the effects of tighter money have taken hold, are certainly limiting the size of the expansion in loans."

One further measure proposed by the Bank of Canada in November was that the chartered banks should adopt a practice of maintaining a 15 per cent minimum ratio of liquid assets (cash, day-to-day loans and treasury bills) to deposits. The banks agreed to work to achieve by May 31, 1956, a 15 per cent ratio, of which 8 per cent would be the already-established legal minimum cash reserve and the other 7 per cent would be treasury bills and day-to-day loans — mainly, of course, bills.

The purpose of the minimum ratio, in the view of the Bank of Canada, was to increase the effectiveness of a restraining monetary policy by limiting the ability of the banks to dispose of such liquid assets in order to expand loans. It was felt by the Bank of Canada that the adoption of a practice of keeping a secondary reserve of liquid assets in addition to cash would assist in bringing the influence of monetary restraint to bear earlier, more gradually and with greater certainty than would otherwise be the case.

Sensible Grain Move

But with a government monopoly in grain marketing it is not going to be easy to make sensible measures stick, to tell one man he can't deliver his grain and collect his money and tell another to go ahead and unload.

After all, under the present system, marketing is the sole responsibility of the Government. "Why shouldn't I be able to deliver my grain in the same proportion as the other fellow," it will be asked? "It's not my fault that the grade is low. My job is to grow grain, Ottawa's job is to get rid of it."

The trouble is that, the grower has been doing a much better job at his end of the business than any government can hope to do in marketing. We have seen a government at Washington getting deeper and deeper into a farm marketing mess. We have got pretty deeply into a mess in Canada too.

Notes From D.A.

By Howard J. Pulcher

Silage is an excellent form of roughage, it is used quite extensively in dairy feeding and to a limited extent in beef feeding. Silage provides a succulent feed for livestock during the dry feeding seasons of the year.

Silage can be made from alfalfa, clover, grass or cereal crops or any combination of these. The quality of silage will depend greatly on the quality of the green crop although coarse stemmed or weedy crops usually can be better utilized as silage. In order to get good silage and little loss due to spoilage a few factors must be considered. Time of cutting is important; legumes in early bloom, grass just headed and cereals in soft dough stage. The moisture content is very important, 65% to 70% moisture is considered best. A test which can be used is squeeze a handful of cut material in your hand, release and the ball of material should slowly expand and break apart, if it falls apart it is too dry, if it runs out it is too wet. This test is not satisfactory on coarse material, generally 1 - 2 hours is enough time between cutting and ensilage time.

When wilting the silo either long or cut material packing is a must. This should be carried out continuously during the filling operation. When the silo is full it should be covered to prevent spoilage; shavings, sawdust, damp straw, straw green manure or earth may be used for this.

There are numerous types of silos, the upright types wood or cement construction, stack piles, snow fence and page wire types, horizontal styles may be of trench, pit or bunker types depending on topography of the land. In the horizontal types constructions have sloped walls rather than straight walls to allow packing to edges, all silos must be provided with drainage.

A forage field day will be held on Wednesday, July 4 at Carstairs. Display and demonstration of all forage harvesting equipment will take place 1/4 mile north of town. Competent speakers will be present to discuss and answer questions pertaining to forage crops and machinery.

Plumer Protests Rate Increase

In commencing on the 1 percent increase in freight rates, Ben S. Plumer, chairman of the Alberta Wheat Pool, said that it was another blow to the already hard pressed prairie farmer.

Farmers are in an unusual position as users of rail transportation. They pay the freight on the produce they sell, whether it be grain or livestock, and this deducted from the price they receive, while on the other hand freight on the goods they buy is tacked onto the price they pay. They pay both coming and going, Mr. Plumer noted.

He expressed concern over the manner in which the increase was granted. The railways, he said, did not have to prove their need for greater revenue even although the Federation of Agriculture filed a vigorous protest. In handling the railways application in this manner the board has set a dangerous precedent, declared the Pool's head.

The fact that the boost applies to domestic grain rates is also of great concern. Only this past winter western farm organizations and other interested groups effectively protested a proposed 10 percent boost in rates. Said Mr. Plumer, "at that time we argued that to ask the farmer to absorb any further increase in his already high production costs was not a realistic approach to the railway's problem. The board of transport commissioners apparently concurred for the increase was not implemented."

Recognizing that the increase in wages recently given rail workers will raise the railway's cost of operation, Mr. Plumer suggested that part of this at least might be taken care of through greater efficiency. The public, he maintained, cannot indefinitely stand a continuous round of wage and rate boosts.

Before any increases are granted, declared the head of the farmer organization, the railways should clearly demonstrate that their need for additional revenue is greater than the prejudicial effects such an increase would have on the economy of the nation and, in particular, on that of Western Canada.

Most modern truck V8's ...and the pounds prove it!

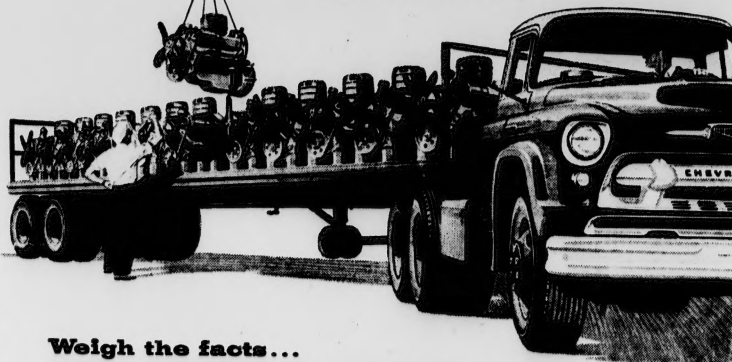

Pound for pound, the most powerful truck V8's today are Chevrolets. That's one way you can tell they're the most modern V8's going!

Any engineer will tell you that horsepower-per-pound is a good indication of efficient engine design. And Chevrolet's modern short-stroke V8 truck engines do more work for their weight than any other V8 in any truck today.

That means they carry around fewer pounds for the power they develop. (They weigh up to 200 pounds less than other comparable engines!) It means, too, that less of the maximum truck G.V.W. consists of engine weight — and more is devoted to payload. So, you not only can haul bigger loads — you have more usable power to move them!

Stop by and let us show you how Chevrolet's compact, super-efficient truck V8's can save hours and dollars on your job.

Weigh the facts...

and you'll choose today's most modern trucks

Wasted weight is engineered out of Chevrolet truck V8's!

The ultra short-stroke design of Chevrolet's truck V8's makes possible a rugged yet compact cylinder block. Modern multiple-purpose components save weight and increase engine efficiency.

More power per pound means more power for your payload!

Since less power is used up in moving engine weight, a bigger proportion is available for moving your payloads. You get hour-saving performance on the job. And modern V8 power saves dollars, too!

There's a modern V8 for every Chevrolet Task-Force truck!

There's a powerful, deep-breathing V8 — either standard, or optional at extra cost — in every Chevrolet truck model. Horsepower ranges as high as 195 for fast, efficient high-tonnage hauling.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Man's God-given right of self-government will be brought out at Christina Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God." Gideon's answer to the men of Israel who asked him to rule over them will be included in the readings from the King James Version of the Bible (Judges 8:23): "And Gideon said unto them, I will not rule over you, neither shall my son rule over you: the Lord shall rule over you."

The basis of proper self-government will be emphasized in readings from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, including the following (186:7): "God has endowed man with inalienable rights, among which are self-government, reason, and conscience. Man is properly self-governed only when he is guided rightly and governed by his Maker, divine Truth and Love."

LABOR SHORTAGE FORESEEN . . .

A labor shortage during the next several weeks appears to be in the making, according to reports from Ottawa.

That means employment opportunities will be better than they've been in years.

As the year's peak employment period draws near, the number of Canadians without jobs is far smaller than in 1955, our busiest year so far. Throughout Canada, only 165,000 persons were unemployed and seeking work at May 19, according to a government survey completed this week. That figure represents 2.9% of the civilian labor force of 5,664,000.

A year earlier, 213,000 persons, or 3.8% of the 5,537,000-man labor force, were without jobs and seeking work.

LET US KEEP OUR HEADS

The people of Canada can thank Viscount Montgomery for bringing us down to earth in our planning to evacuate cities in case of air attack.

General Montgomery was too diplomatic to tell us bluntly that our plans for such an evacuation would probably result in chaos; but he told us what would happen in Europe if such a thing were attempted there. If we are wise we will take the hint and take another, more thoughtful look at our own plans.

We suspect that our civil defence volunteers have held the same views as Viscount Montgomery; but members of such voluntary organizations don't like to be kickers and would rather go along with the plans handed down from the top than create any discord in the ranks.

But, now that a general of Viscount Montgomery's standing has drawn attention to the matter, perhaps sufficient interest will be aroused for the people's good sense to assert itself.
